Continuation of: Box No.V, item2

The subject matter of claim 7 and 16 and 25 do not involve an inventive step over D1,D2 and D3 for the following reasons. Claim 7 and 16 and 25 relate to [data communication means for performing the data communication by using a data transmission/reception protocol which is not a VoIP procedure signal]. Such element appears to be known from D1 (see [0044]) and D3(see [0026]).

The subject matter of claim 8 and 17 and 26 do not involve an inventive step over D1, D2 and D3 for the following reasons. Claim 8 and 17 and 26 relate to [VolP codec for converting an analog voice signal into a digital signal]. Such element is obvious if the communication means uses VolP protocol.

The subject matter of claim 9 and 18 do not involve an inventive step over D1 ,D2 and D3 for the following reasons. Claim 9 and 18 relate to [the communication partner station is a facsimile gateway]. Such element appears to be commonly known, because facsimile gateway is common as a communication partner station.

The subject matter of claim 27,28 and 29 do not involve an inventive step over D1 , D2 and D3 for the following reasons. Claim 27, 28 and 29 relate to [a gateway apparatus including an IP communication means]. Such element appears to be known from D1 and D3 , because generally ,gateway apparatus is an apparatus which is used for converting one communication protocol to another. And D1 and D3 shows the element which can perform the same function.

The subject matter of claim 30 does not involve an inventive step over D1 ,D2 and D3 for the following reasons. Claim 30 relates to [a communication method]. And elements in this claim are almost the same of Claim 27.
